CHASE HORSE THIEF

Nineteen Year Old Youth is Caught With Stolen Horse Near Zion City

WAS WILD POLICE CHASE

Stolen Horse Outdistanced Three Other Houses But Automobile Conquered the Broncho Mare

Following closely upon the complaint that a horse thief had been working this part of the county the Waukegan police on Sunday made the capture of Harold Waters, a youth of eighteen years, whose home is in Waukegan and who admits that he took the horses because he wanted to do something mean to his folks.

Sunday afternoon the police received the tip that Waters was driving a horse, which was believed to have been stolen, on one of the Waukegan streets. The police immediately set out and finally captured the thief near Russell after a 13-mile run in which the police changed horses three times and finally secured an automobile to overtake the indefatigable broncho driven by the boy.

As soon as Waters saw that a chase was on he headed for Wisconsin. At the Milwaukee road the police horse began to tire, and upon meeting H. C. Shales, the horses were exchanged in short order. With the fresh horse the police managed to gain for a time, but near Beach their horse again began to tire and meeting Walter Samuels he was also induced to exchange. At Zion City Waters made an ineffectual effort to shake the police, who were at that place joined by Marshall Japp, with a fresh horse. But despite these changes the little broncho proved to be more than a match for them all. He was drawing the lighter load and thus had an advantage over the rest. A telephone message was sent ahead asking that the horse be stopped but the warnings were not acted upon and Waters had clear sailing. He drove recklessly and his buggy would skid around a corner on two wheels. The police expected to see him upset but the chase continued without abatement.

Charles Mantkus when told of the trouble took out his automobile and joined the chase. The police were soon in the car and soon the machine began to gain upon Waters, gradually the intervening space was lessened and soon the auto was running abreast of the buggy. A moment later Assistant Chief of Police Tyrrell drew his gun and commanded the boy to surrender, which he did with the best of grace when he saw that the game was up.

Waters was taken back to Waukegan and lodged in the county jail. When interviewed he told the story as follows. "I left here on Monday morning and went to Libertyville where I got a horse from C. H. Smith, a liveryman. I drove to Millburn where I managed to trade the horse for the broncho belonging to Willis S. Webb. I did not receive any money, being willing to trade even. Then I drove about going to Kenosha, where I stayed all night. I drove to Waukegan Friday night. I came home Sunday to get a clean shirt and was then going to drive away again. I didn't realize that I was taking big chances but just wanted to have some fun. I am sorry now that I did it."

The police declare that Waters is hardened in spite of his youth. He admits that he smokes many cigarettes and is a devotee of dime novels. Friends of the family seem to share the opinion of the parents that the boy is slightly deranged or he would not have done such a thing. Waters waived examination when arraigned in court Monday morning and was bound over to the October term of the grand jury in bonds of $2,500. He was unable to furnish bail and will remain in the county jail until his case comes up in the fall.

Swearing in Spanish Witnesses. In some provinces of Spain the witness must cross the thumb of one hand over the forefinger of the other; then, kissing this symbolic, if primitive, cross he announces: "By this cross I swear to tell the truth."

Notice to Horse Owners. Having had years of experience I will be on the road castrating colts as usual. All communications will be promptly attended to. John McGuire, Antioch, Ill.

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS

Machine Turns Turtle at Libertyville—Car Hits Telegraph Pole at Waukegan.

Two automobile accidents occurred in Lake county Sunday and while the occupants of machines in each case got off without fatal injuries, all were more or less bruised. One accident occurred just south of Libertyville, the other on North Sheridan road, Waukegan.

The Libertyville accident was the worst of the two and reports at first had it that one of the women passengers had her leg broken but denial was made later.

At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon a Chicago doctor, driving a Ford car, passed through Libertyville and, near the Hanson place, 3½ miles south of the village, he turned out to allow a rig to pass. As he did so, the machine turned over into the ditch, upsetting the five occupants, three women and two men. One of the women was quite badly hurt but no bones are reported to have been broken. The other occupants were also badly bruised but no bones were broken.

Coroner Hoffman of Chicago happened along, en route home from Fox Lake and he took the victims to Highland Park where they boarded a train for the city.

The auto, badly damaged by accident, is still at the Hanson farm awaiting the return of the owner, whose name was not given out to those who went to the assistances of the victims. The machine is said to have been going at a fast clip when the upsetting came but fortunately, none of the occupants were pinned under it as it turned over.

A Wisconsin Ford auto about midnight Sunday night hit a telegraph pole in front of the W. G. Strong residence on Sheridan road and damaged the front of the machine greatly. The car is now in the Griffin garage where it was hauled after the owner had gone there and merely told them he had an accident and wished the machine repaired. He appeared at the garage at 2:30 this morning. He carried Wisconsin number 4919 but his name is not known. He carried passengers in the car and stated that, while the machine was badly damaged, none of the occupants were hurt. He stated that the steering gear got out of his control, causing the accident.

The front of the machine and the wheels were completely demolished.

ANTIOCH COUPLE JOINED IN MATRIMONY

Last Friday in Chicago occurred a wedding of direct interest to our Antioch readers, the bride and groom being a well known Antioch couple, Miss Pearl Borton and Mr. Samuel Ries.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldora Horton, who up to a year ago made their home at Antioch, but now reside at Pikeville, and is one of Antioch's most popular young ladies with a host of friends who extend to her best wishes for a happy future.

The groom is a well known young man whose entire life has been spent in this village and who has a wide circle of friends who honor him for his general uprightness and strength of character.

Mr. and Mrs. Ries will take up their residence in the home of the groom on Ada avenue.

The News joins with their many friends in extending hearty congratulations to the happy couple.

LOCAL OPTION ELEMENT ORGANIZES

The movement of the Local Option forces to organize every township in the county was formally launched at a meeting held in the Temperance Temple last Monday evening.

Rev. McGinnis declared that the Local Option League had started out to organize every township in the county and state. By this universal organization we will have perfected a big machine whose wheels when set in motion will be a powerful factor in fighting the liquor traffic.

The names of the officers will be withheld until all have signified their willingness to accept.

JUMPED THROUGH WINDOW

Burglar Made Good His Escape When Trapped in Waukegan Laundry

EMPLOYEE GIVES THE ALARM

Saw Man Begin Work Upon Office Safe Then Gave Word—McCanney and Log Cabin Buffets Entered

Three burglaries were committed in Waukegan Tuesday night and one of them was accompanied by spectacular features of a sensational nature. The three places entered were the Model Laundry, the Log Cabin and the McCanney buffets.

The attempt at cracking the safe in the office of the Model Laundry on South Sheridan road would have undoubtedly proved successful had not G. T. Vail, an employee, chanced to have been sleeping in the work room of the laundry.

Slipping out of a rear window clad only in his underwear, Vail rushed to the Hotel Washburn to notify the police that a burglar was at work on the safe. Just as he reached Water street he met two women who screamed and fled and possibly gave the burglar the alarm which resulted in his escape.

Vail had worked late and had decided to sleep the balance of the night in the rear room. Removing his clothing with the exception of his underwear and stockings he went to sleep upon the table. Near midnight he was aroused by the crashing of glass and could see a man entering through a side window.

Believing that he could succeed in trapping the burglar while at work, Vail pretended to sleep until the man commenced work upon the safe. Then he went to the hotel and telephoned the police station. An officer was found and accompanied by several traveling salesmen went to the laundry.

The burglar made his escape by jumping from a rear window and running through the Northwestern yards.

The manager believes that the man was fully familiar with the premises because he selected a screen that was insecurely fastened. All the others were tightly clamped with heavy staples. The man was also seen to go directly to the tool box where he helped himself to what tools he required.

Two valuable clews were left behind by the burglar. Nothing of value was taken from the safe but the inner door was wrecked.

From both the Log Cabin and McCanney buffets a quantity of liquor and cigars were taken but in both instances a sum of money was overlooked. The glass in the rear door of the Log Cabin was carefully cut out and later put back by the cautious burglar.

BARTENDER BEATEN WHEN HE REFUSED ROUGHS DRINGS

Tuesday evening one of the most cowardly assaults was made by several young men, upon the person of Lee Smirski, who tends bar for James Brown, says the Libertyville Independent.

Because Mr. Smirski refused one of the outfit a drink in the afternoon, as it was thought he had all he could take care of, he became abusive, at the same time calling him all kinds of names. In fact, the transgressor pulled his coat for a "bout," but before he carried out his plan he was put out of the saloon. This was the starting point of the assault.

In the evening the gang procured refreshments and lunch and intended to have a good time. It seems that Smirski was going south on Milwaukee avenue, when the "picknickers" made a rush for him. The odds were against him, and as a result he was getting the worst of it, but Mr. Brown and others came to his rescue in time to save him from being severely beaten. This ended the scuffle, but the most "cheeky" part of the procedure is to come. After the assault, one of the bunch had the audacity to re-enter the saloon and after a few words with Mr. Brown, he quit the place at a more rapid rate than when he entered.

The affair is condemned by the public, as the assault was unprovoked, and the aggressors have lowered their estimation in the minds of many by their cowardly action.

CHARLES WHITNEY IS WORSE

Prominent Lake County Attorney Very Low in California

SUMMON SON TO BEDSIDE

Statement of Doctor That "He Has a Chance" Causes Consternation Among His Friends

"Father is worse come at once"

The above message was received Wednesday by Ray Whitney from his sister, Ethel, in Los Angeles, Cal., and the younger Mr. Whitney left for the bedside of his father and will make all haste to reach him.

He expects to arrive Sunday morning.

While he was uncertain about it, he felt that his sister also had probably sent a cable to her brother, Fred, who is in St. Petersburg, Russia, where he is located in business.

Before leaving, Mr. Whitney, Jr. said that he feared his father was most critical or his sister would not have sent for him, adding that her word to him said that the doctor had told her, her father "had a chance", which indicates a most serious condition of the prominent Lake County lawyer and business man, one of the county's foremost citizens, in fact, conceded by many to be the foremost man of the county.

Mr. Whitney went several weeks ago and immediately after his arrival he was taken sick, erysipelas developing in his face. That later, as reported Wednesday evening, the trouble spread to his leg and last week he had to go through an operation. Feels are held now that the operation was none too successful and that is why his daughter has sent for her brother.

This is the second time that Mr. Whitney has been taken sick immediately after arriving for a visit in California, the previous trouble occurring several years ago. He went west recently merely on a pleasure trip and reports were that, if his health improved and he liked it he might remove there permanently.

He retired from the law firm of Whitney and Upton several years ago and intended leading practically a quiet life, but finding it impossible to remain inactive he opened an office and took in Ralph Dady as a partner and later E. M. Runyard was added to the firm.

Mr. Whitney is perhaps the best known citizen of the county, his extensive law practice and prominence at the bar having given him an acquaintance second to none in the county. He is one of the strongest men politically and one of the most highly esteemed, hence his sickness interests the county more possibly than that of any other citizen.

WISHES OF MOTHER ARE HONORED

The wishes of their mother are stronger than verdict of the law with the heirs of Mrs. Beatrice Smith, mother of the late James (Silent) Smith who died at her home in Evanston on March 20th. The law declared that the will of Mrs. Smith is illegal, but the heirs will divide the estate she left in strict accordance with her desires and will not take advantage of the liberties given them by the invalidity of his document.

The will was filed in the probate court some time ago. Yesterday Judge Charles S. Cutting refused to record it because of its illegality. Mrs. Smith had neglected to name an executor or a residuary legatee and her witnesses were two servants who testified they had not seen her sign the document, but had attached their names simply because requested to do so.

Judge Cutting's ruling caused a meeting of the heirs, who number among them children and grand-children of Mrs. Smith and servants. All were in favor of respecting the will.

The will reads:

"I give and bequeath to each of the following persons the sum of $1,000, Alex Yule of Big Timber, Mont; Maggie Dietmeyer, Alin Yule, Louise Y. Gerry, Wollie Heddle Burgess, Ruby Beatrice Hughes, Beatrice Rossback, James C. Rossback, Mrs. Belle Y. Phillips, Mary Halada, cook; Mrs. Lavigne, nurse."

"Also to the woman's board of missions of the interior I bequeath $1,000."

GHOST VISITS ZION CITY

Religious Fanatic Tells of Two Attacks by Unearthly Assailant

At least, according to a man named Carr, employed in one of the factories as watchman, ghosts are not only scaring folks but they are attacking folks who believes other than they and their relatives do in the matter of religion.

Carr, a week ago, told a startling tale to his friends, to the effect that, during the night, as he was walking through the plant, a ghost seized hold of his neck and choked him until he almost collapsed.

He did not think much of it at that time, but, when, the next night, the same ghost in the same place again attacked and choked him he was so affected that he made his way home and is now in bed, due, he claims, to the attack of the ghost.

He says the ghost was a regular white spectre and had the strength of a Goliath. When friends suggested that it may have been some enemy who had laid for him and attacked him in this manner to scare him, he scouted the idea and insists it was a regular ghost.

His explanation is that the departed spirit of some opponent in religious beliefs has come back to earth to seek to compel him to desert his beliefs and adopt those of the one who has gone hence. Carr is almost prostrated and really seems very sick as he lies in his bed at home, trying to figure out the full meaning of his unearthly visitor.

OLDEST LIVING MASON LIVES IN LAKE COUNTY

John Tweed of Ingleside, is perhaps the oldest living Mason in Illinois and one of the oldest in the world. He was born in Ireland in 1821, and is now 89 years of age. He was made a master Mason in 1844, has been passed to the Royal Arch degree and is a member of the Knights Templar; he is also a Knight of Malta and Knight of the Red Cross and Mediterranean Pass.

Worshipful Sir John Tweed is the possessor of a Masonic certificate of membership signed by the officers of Island Magee Blue Lodge, dated April 24, 1847. The document is yellow with age but is highly prized by the owner, who gave it to Attorney C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan, in order that its contents might be copied and preserved.

Do You Favor the Tuberculin Test?

On account of there being so much agitation in regard to the "Tuberculin Testing of Cattle," and as the joint committee appointed by the last legislature, for the purpose of investigation, are holding meetings from time to time to receive information on the subject, and as the impression seems to have gone abroad that the farmers in general are in favor of this test, why would it not be well for the farmers in this vicinity to make known their opinion. An expression direct from the farmer is desired and will undoubtedly bear some weight with the report of the committee. Please fill out and sign the coupon below voicing your opinion by a yes or no vote, marking your choice by a cross on the line opposite, then mail or bring to this office and the result will be forwarded to aforesaid committee. Those who do not receive a copy of the News may procure a copy by calling at this office. If you wish to hand this coupon to a neighbor you may do so, as it will appear in next week's issue also.

CHAPTER I.

The western sun was casting lengthy shadows among the gaunt pines and sturdy aspens along the steep upward slope of a certain wild canyon in the Nevada Sierras.

Five hundred feet below the dry floor of the gulch, which here widened to a narrow valley, was filled from wall to wall with a motley huddle of rough cabins, log-saw cottages, a glaring red-brick opera house, hotel, and bank all in one, and a pair of clapboarded, whitewashed churches.

Upon the sultry and drowsy air of a summer afternoon there arose the confused hum and the hoarse murmur of strenuous industry, above which, like the footsteps of the animated stone statue in "Don Juan," the insistent note of the busy "stamps," at work night and day, three "shifts" in each 24 hours, dominated all other sounds.

This was the little mining town of Meleen, named in honor of its founder, who was likewise the discoverer, manipulator, and chief owner of the rich Peacock lode, which gave employment to 300 men and netted over a million a year for its stockholders.

Rough and ready, ignorant and shrewd, was old Andrew Meleen. Originally a Welsh miner in Cardiff and later in the Pennsylvania coal fields, he by turns had been volunteer soldier, pioneer, prospector, and finally many times a millionaire, after weary years of fortune-chasing up and down the gold and silver country of the great west.

For the crude affairs of this typical raw western camp, with its bizarre admixture of civilization and savagery, we have only a passing interest in that it is the starting point of the story in hand. Our present and most vividly human concern is with the creator of all this industry and potential wealth—and he lay a-dying.

Far up the eastern hillside commanding the town, whence one could almost fancy he was looking over the next divide to where the flaming sun was setting amid cloudy billows in the wide Pacific miles beyond, on a sort of bench or plateau an acre in extent, stood a curious and rambling wooden structure, in triple part log cabin, hunting ranch, and modern country house.

This unique huddle of divers styles of pioneer architecture really represented as many different periods in the fortunes of its eccentric owner. The rough, unbarked logs of the original single-roomed cabin which formed a prominent wing or angle marked the poor-pro prospector stage; then, with more prosperous times, came an addition framed by a wandering Yankee carpenter and sheathed with boards of red wood, now beautifully weathered to a rich mahogany hue; finally, as if to mark the ultimate rise to affluence of the occupant, a two-story structure had been added, shingled as to walls and roof, while upon three sides a covered veranda wide enough for a fashionable cotillon, approached by generous steps and a peaked porch, gave comfortable assurance of cool shade and a constant breeze shifting with the sun.

Around and above porch and cabin there clambered festoons of grape vines and wild creepers, the dark-green leaves lending a deeper tinge to the background of cedar and redwood posts and walls.

From this eyrie the old man who was its chief occupant could easily toss a lump of his own shining ore on the roofs of the little town beneath; viewed by day, the smoke of its furnaces went winding away in long spirals and ribbons of vapor; at night, the spurts of colored flame from the chimneys of retort house and smelter lit up the opposite sides of the canyon in fitful flashes of murky red, or paled to an orange glow under the wan light of the moon.

The solitary dweller on the hillside never wearied of the changing picture. It was his; he had called into being the town and its throbbing industries; he loved it with the passionate, yearning love of a wifeless and childless old man. For him the cities of the coast—Los Angeles or San Francisco, Portland or Seattle—possessed few charms. They only served to bank his constantly increasing millions. The rough little town, with its amazing monthly output of gold and silver, and copper, stood to him in place of wife and child; the queer old ranch overlooking it all was his real home—his pride, his passion, his delight.

And now the time was come when he must leave it all and go hence, for

Andy Meleen was dying, and chiefly of that most incurable of diseases, old age, while his vast wealth must descend to an heir whom he had never seen.

Upon a curious contrivance of domestic devising, half bedstead, half reclining chair, set upon casters so that it could readily be wheeled indoors and out, lay the old millionaire. Each livelong day, from sunrise to sunset, he insisted on being placed in his wide porch, whence he could still oversee his beloved town, and gaze at the noble prospect, with its constantly shifting panorama of lights and shadows. Only nightfall drove him within doors.

Rugged and gnarled as his own native hills, originally of great girth and mighty in stature, he was now shrunken to mere skin and bone. All the life and virility of the man seemed to have retreated to the massive head, as beleaguered forces take refuge in some strong keep for a last desperate rally. From beneath a square forehead and a thatch of grizzled eyebrows a pair of piercing gray-blue eyes flashed imperiously, while from the heaving chest there still issued tones surprisingly strong for one so evidently near his end. There was no sign of senility when he shot a curt query at his only servant, an old pioneer like himself, who sat in the doorway stolidly cleaning a rifle, out of sight but within call.

"Putty nigh time that lawyer fellow was here, eh?" said Andy over his shoulder, striving vainly to raise his head from the high-heaped cushions, but only succeeding in moving it from side to side.

Evans rose and went to the railing of the veranda, whence one could see the winding road, scarcely more than a well-trodden trail, which led from the town to the house on the hill. Shading his eyes from the blinding glare of the nearly level sun rays, he peered downward for some moments before responding. Then, saying laconically:

"Jest comin' up the rise," he returned to his seat and his task.

Shortly there became audible the soft thud of hoof-beats and the creaking of straining leather, punctured by the crackling of a whip and the encouraging "cluck-cluck" of the driver. The road curved behind the house, and as the sounds drew away Meleen followed them with a hearkening, rolling motion of the head infinitely pathetic in its yearning helplessness and impotence.

Soon there was the sound of footsteps within the house, and there appeared upon the veranda the long-expected arrival, Phineas Carboy, a well-known San Francisco practitioner in the law, whose firm had transacted most of Andrew Meleen's affairs since he had been wealthy enough to afford the luxury of eminent legal advice. Never in his life had he needed it more than now.

"That's the Law, Ain't it?"

His eyes flashed with feverish impatience as he responded to the lawyer's formal greetings. Hardly was he seated, note book in hand, than the dying man rapped out curtly:

"Are y' ready?"

"Quite so, Mr. Meleen," was the response; knowing his man, Mr. Carboy wasted no words on formal condolences or tame civilities.

"Understand what I want done?" was the next question.

"Your telegram intimated that you desired to give me instructions for your last will and testament."

"Instructions—yes—ye'll get enough of them!" with a grim smile; "but I want the thing fixed up this blessed night. My time's short, as y' see. Can y' do it—will it stand?"

Mr. Carboy nodded gravely, and with pen ready poised looked expectantly at his client. But the latter's next words were not exactly those he anticipated.

"How much sh'd you say I wuz wuth, Carboy, if everything wuz cleaned up an' turned into cash?" inquired the old man. The legal mind hesitated, but only for an instant.

"Twenty-five or thirty million dollars at the very least," was the quiet reply.

"I guess that's about it," sighed Andy Meleen. "Now, man, stek a pin through this: I'm going to leave all that I'm wuth to a feller I've niver seen!"

He shot a keen glance at Mr. Carboy to judge of the effect of this somewhat startling announcement, but the lawyer was too well trained to show any mark of surprise beyond a slight contracting and lifting of the eyebrows.

"You know his name, I presume, and where he can be found?"

"No, I don't!" was the reply snapped back; "that's for you t' find out. This is the way of it: I had an only sister over there in the old country named Mattie. She kem t' Ameriky ten year after I did, an' I heard she wuz married an' had a son. But I've forgotten her husband's name if I ever knew it. Ha'n't seen her since she wuz a slip of a girl. Course, she may be dead, an' the boy, too, though she wuz younger'n me by four or five year; but you've got to try an' find 'em."

"You never saw your sister after she arrived in this country, and held no communication whatever?" asked the lawyer, making notes.

Meleen shook his head. "I wuz mighty poor myself in those days, Carboy, an'—oh, well, I'd troubles of my own, an' then I drifted west an' out here."

"Where was this sister living when you last heard of her?"

"N' York."

"How many years ago would that be?"

"Bout 20, I reckon."

"And her son, if living, is to have everything?"

"That's it!" was the emphatic reply. "Gosh! I'll bet he'll be astonished wherever and whoever he is!"

"Doubtless!" was Carboy's dry comment. "But had you no other kin, Mr. Meleen?"

"Nary a kin," was the reply. "There was only me an' Mattie, an' we wuz left orphans when I wuz no bigger'n a shovell."

"No cousins, for instance?" persisted Mr. Carboy.

"Nary a cousin."

"Were you ever married yourself?" was the next query. Simple and necessary as it was under the circumstances, and put in a colorless, matter-of-fact manner, its effect on the recumbent figure of old Andy Meleen was like that of a galvanic battery applied to a corpse.

His nervous and shrunken frame twitched and quivered; the once mighty chest heaved as though it would burst asunder; great beads of sweat broke out on face and forehead, and his strong mouth and chin trembled with emotions entirely apart from causes due to age and weakness. Mr. Carboy was genuinely distressed at the effect he had so unwittingly produced.

Something in the question had touched Andy on the raw. In halting and fragmentary phrases he said:

"God forgive me, Carboy, I wuz married, an' to the sweetest little woman that ever trod God A'mighty's footstool! I wuz a man full grown then—45 years old—old 'nuff to know better! I wuz workin' in the Pennsylvania coal mines. A month after the weddin' we had a main fitter quarrel. There kem a strike, an' I went out along o' the rest o' the boys. Minna didn't like my bein' out o' work, an' told me so. There wuz hot words, an' in a blindin' rage I struck her an' left the house, swearin' I'd never go back! Then, like a fule, I went an' listed for Uncle Sam. At the fightin' in the Wilderness, my fust battle, I got hit in three or four places, an' the am-bulances left me on the field for dead. But an old farmer picked me up, an' after puttin' in a year o' hospital I kem out putty nigh as fit as ever. Th' war wuz over, an' then I heard that my wife, my Minna, had died in her time o' trouble an' her girl baby with her. As heaven's my witness, I've niver squared myself with myself for leavin' her alone at such a time. I tramped west—niver showed my ugly face east ag'in—an' you know the rest."

"Forgive me for arousing such painful memories, Mr. Meleen," said Carboy, "but the inquiry was inevitable; we must know where we stand."

Old Andy signified that he heard and appreciated. The strain of this long recital had come mighty near to parting his mortal coil then and there, and he lay as one indeed very near to death. Mr. Carboy waited a few minutes—he was not yet done with his probings into the past. At length Meleen opened his eyes once more and turned them mutely on his inquisitor, who interpreted that as a sign for him to proceed.

"I presume these matters can be verified—the time and place of your marriage and the date of demise of your wife and child?"

For answer the old miner produced a well-worn leather wallet from under the blanket which covered him.

"You'll find th' dates an' names there," he said faintly. "Anythin' more y' want t' know?"

"One other point must be settled: Suppose this nephew of yours is dead, or cannot be found—who is to inherit in that case?"

Another spasm convulsed Andy's rugged features.

"It goes to the state, I s'pose; that's the law, ain't it?"

Carboy nodded.

The Ultimate Aim. Life is given us primarily to develop character, to unfold and evolve the soul, and the physical organism, our body, is the testing ground and gymnasium for its development; says the Philadelphia Record.

The ultimate aim, then, of living should be making the life beautiful within, which always insures loveliness without—the masterful conquest of the lower nature, the willing renunciation of trifling and unnecessary habits; love of the true and perfect and avoidance of the untrue and imperfect; a realization that whatever else others may do or be, that our conscious universe will be made for and by ourselves. The key of life and the art of living are expressed in the words mastery and attainment. This can be done by right thinking, by finding our soul center. We will claim our divine birthright, our royal privilege of standing erect and free with brow bared to the white light of truth, veritable sons and daughters of God.

Don't overdo a thing unless you are also prepared to do it over.

DR. HYDE GETS LIFE

KANSAS CITY PHYSICIAN FOUND
GUILTY OF POISONING
COLONEL SWOPE.

DOCTOR STILL HAS HOPES

Jurors Reach Agreement After Having
Been Locked Up Since Friday
Night—Prisoner's Lawyers
Will Appeal Case.

Kansas City, Mo.—Dr. B. C. Hyde was on Monday found guilty of murder in the first degree and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. That he poisoned his wife's uncle, Col. Thomas H. Swope, the Kansas City millionaire, was the verdict reached by the jury after three nights and two days of deliberation.

The physician will be sentenced in open court by Justice Latschaw Thursday of Friday. The law allows the defense four days to file a motion for a new trial.

"Treat that prisoner the same as any other," Judge Latschaw said to County Marshal Joe B. Mayes. "Give him few privileges and no luxuries."

The custom of permitting prisoners to send out for their meals will apply in Doctor Hyde's case, but he must sleep in a cell.

"I will file a motion for a new trial and then take an appeal in the case," said Frank P. Walsh, chief counsel for Doctor Hyde.

The verdict came unexpectedly. Every attorney in the case had given up hope that the jury, which had been out since Friday night, would come to an agreement.

When the announcement came that the verdict was ready the news spread rapidly and every inch of space in the courtroom soon was occupied.

Little time was wasted in reading the verdict. The crowd heard it and at the marshal's orders arose and left the room without confusion. Judge Latschaw thanked each of the jurors and they hurried home.

"Oh, Clark!" cried Mrs. Hyde as the jury's verdict was read. Then she threw her arms around her husband's neck and wept. As his wife patted him on the cheek Hyde sat motionless, staring at Judge Latschaw. When the words "imprisonment for life" were read he showed the first signs of excitement. Soon he regained his composure, however, and said: "Don't worry, dearie," to Mrs. Hyde.

Doctor Hyde said: "I have not lost hope. There will be another trial."

Within ten minutes the prisoner was taken back to his cell.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

LINK PURGED OF CONTEMPT

Witness in Illinois Legislative Bribery
Inquiry Answers Question Propounded by State's Attorney.

Springfield, Ill.—Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell was Monday purged of his contempt of court when he went before the Sangamon county grand jury and answered the question put to him by State's Attorney Edmund Burke in the legislative bribery scandal.

In answer to the question: "Did any person or persons in Sangamon county, Illinois, offer, or promise you any money, or other valuable thing in consideration of your vote in the Forty-sixth general assembly of this state for a United States senator?" Mr. Link is said to have replied "No."

This was the only question put to him by the state's attorney, but Link is said to have told the jurors and Prosecutor Burke that he would be glad to tell his whole story, but for the fact that State's Attorney Wayman at Chicago had found a contradiction in his testimony before the Cook county grand jury and had threatened him with indictment for perjury if he told anything elsewhere.

Following his determination to delve into the alleged "jack-pot" bribery, State's Attorney Burke issued two subpoenas "duces tecum" for John M. Glenn, secretary, and S. M. Hastings, treasurer, of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, together with the books of the concern.

Shows Value of Steel Car.

That the steel car is of great value as a protection to passengers in the event of collision was demonstrated in a recent clash of two trains in the Hudson tunnel, New York city. There was no such telescoping as would probably have occurred with wooden cars, and the injuries were merely such as resulted from the passengers being thrown down by the shock of the collision.

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

CONVERTING THE OLD MAN

Cogent Reason Advanced That Had the Effect of Bringing "Paw" to the Penitent Bench.

They say that once down in a Kentucky county, which shall be anonymous, one of the young rough-necks was converted at a revival held in the little building which served a double purpose as schoolhouse and church. He had been a wild lad, but his conversion was sincere, and by the force of his example or possibly of his hard fist he succeeded in getting the rest of his following to join, too.

His father had never been to church, and said, further, that he never intended to go. His son, however, following his change of front, greatly desired that his sire should join him in that stand. He got the preacher, who was conducting the services, to go and wrestle with the old fellow. The two adjured him to attend church.

He was finally persuaded to do so, and once there the son and the evangelist directed their efforts to getting him on the mourners' bench. The old man wavered, but finally stood firm. He reckoned it was powerful good, but he kinder believed he'd let things be as they were.

"Look, here, paw," said the recent proselyte, "you come on in. I'm in, and I can tell you it's so d— good you ought to take a little of it just for luck!"

That was an unconventional way of putting it, but it had its effect, and the old man joined.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SUGAR A NEED OF THE BODY

Requisite Food for Both Children and Adults, According to Emminent Authority.

"Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butter scotch and they'll have little need of cod liver oil," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson. "In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put this matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding and other desserts at your lunch or midday dinner. You'll be astonished to find out how quickly you'll feel 'empty' again, and how 'unfinished' the meal will seem. You can't get any workman to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he's absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that the free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and the lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business. The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal, the less alcohol he wants. Conversely nearly every drinking man will tell you he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol."

EVER HAVE LIBRARY FRIGHT?

Awful Feeling That Sometimes Attacks People Asking for Books in a Strange Place.

"Library fright is an awful feeling," said the librarian. "It attacks people who go into a strange library to look around or rest for a few minutes and are told that in order to enjoy the hospitality of the reading room they will have to ask for a book and make at least a pretense of reading."

"I have had library fright twice myself. My first attack was in the Congressional library in Washington. I wanted to read there for a few minutes, just to be able to say afterward that I had read there. Used as I was to handling books, I couldn't think of even the dictionary when it came to making a choice. After a few minutes of hopeless floundering 'Taine's History of English Literature' came into my mind. I had no desire on earth to look at Taine's English literature then or at any other time, but I give you my word I couldn't think of any other book to save my life."

"Another time in a library right here in town I was stricken with a similar panic and after stumbling through the catalogue in a dazed sort of way I asked for 'David Copperfield'—Copperfield, mind you, that I had read forty-seven times and knew by heart. A person who has never experienced library fright cannot imagine how foolish and helpless the sufferer feels."—Exchange.

CHAPTER I.

The western sun was casting lengthy shadows among the gaunt pines and sturdy aspens along the steep upward slope of a certain wild canyon in the Nevada Sierras.

Five hundred feet below the dry floor of the gulch, which here widened to a narrow valley, was filled from wall to wall with a motley huddle of rough cabins, log-saw cottages, a glaring red-brick opera house, hotel, and bank all in one, and a pair of clapboarded, whitewashed churches.

Upon the sultry and drowsy air of a summer afternoon there arose the confused hum and the hoarse murmur of strenuous industry, above which, like the footsteps of the animated stone statue in "Don Juan," the insistent note of the busy "stamps," at work night and day, three "shifts" in each 24 hours, dominated all other sounds.

This was the little mining town of Meleen, named in honor of its founder, who was likewise the discoverer, manipulator, and chief owner of the rich Peacock lode, which gave employment to 300 men and netted over a million a year for its stockholders.

Rough and ready, ignorant and shrewd, was old Andrew Meleen. Originally a Welsh miner in Cardiff and later in the Pennsylvania coal fields, he by turns had been volunteer soldier, pioneer, prospector, and finally many times a millionaire, after weary years of fortune-chasing up and down the gold and silver country of the great west.

For the crude affairs of this typical raw western camp, with its bizarre admixture of civilization and savagery, we have only a passing interest in that it is the starting point of the story in hand. Our present and most vividly human concern is with the creator of all this industry and potential wealth—and he lay a-dying.

Far up the eastern hillside commanding the town, whence one could almost fancy he was looking over the next divide to where the flaming sun was setting amid cloudy billows in the wide Pacific miles beyond, on a sort of bench or plateau an acre in extent, stood a curious and rambling wooden structure, in triple part log cabin, hunting ranch, and modern country house.

This unique huddle of divers styles of pioneer architecture really represented as many different periods in the fortunes of its eccentric owner. The rough, unbarbed logs of the original single-roomed cabin which formed a prominent wing or angle marked the poor-pro prospector stage; then, with more prosperous times, came an addition framed by a wandering Yankee carpenter and sheathed with boards of red wood, now beautifully weathered to a rich mahogany hue; finally, as if to mark the ultimate rise to affluence of the occupant, a two-story structure had been added, shingled as to walls and roof, while upon three sides a covered veranda wide enough for a fashionable cotillon, approached by generous steps and a peaked porch, gave comfortable assurance of cool shade and a constant breeze shifting with the sun.

Around and above porch and cabin there clambered festoons of grape vines and wild creepers, the dark-green leaves lending a deeper tinge to the background of cedar and redwood posts and walls.

From this eyrie the old man who was its chief occupant could easily toss a lump of his own shining ore on the roofs of the little town beneath; viewed by day, the smoke of its furnaces went winding away in long spirals and ribbons of vapor; at night, the spurts of colored flame from the chimneys of retort house and smelter lit up the opposite sides of the canyon in fitful flashes of murky red, or paled to an orange glow under the wan light of the moon.

The solitary dweller on the hillside never wearied of the changing picture. It was his; he had called into being the town and its throbbing industries; he loved it with the passionate, yearning love of a wifeless and childless old man. For him the cities of the coast—Los Angeles or San Francisco, Portland or Seattle—possessed few charms. They only served to bank his constantly increasing millions. The rough little town, with its amazing monthly output of gold and silver, and copper, stood to him in place of wife and child; the queer old ranch overlooking it all was his real home—his pride, his passion, his delight.

And now the time was come when he must leave it all and go hence, for

Andy Meleen was dying, and chiefly of that most incurable of diseases, old age, while his vast wealth must descend to an heir whom he had never seen.

Upon a curious contrivance of domestic devising, half bedstead, half reclining chair, set upon casters so that it could readily be wheeled indoors and out, lay the old millionaire. Each livelong day, from sunrise to sunset, he insisted on being placed in his wide porch, whence he could still oversee his beloved town, and gaze at the noble prospect, with its constantly shifting panorama of lights and shadows. Only nightfall drove him within doors.

Rugged and gnarled as his own native hills, originally of great girth and might in stature, he was now shrunken to mere skin and bone. All the life and virility of the man seemed to have retreated to the massive head, as beleaguered forces take refuge in some strong keep for a last desperate rally. From beneath a square forehead and a thatch of grizzled eyebrows a pair of piercing gray-blue eyes flashed imperiously, while from the heaving chest there still issued tones surprisingly strong for one so evidently near his end. There was no sign of senility when he shot a curt query at his only servant, an old pioneer like himself, who sat in the doorway stolidly cleaning a rifle, out of sight but within call.

"Putty high time that lawyer fellow was here, eh?" said Andy over his shoulder, striving vainly to raise his head from the high-heaped cushions, but only succeeding in moving it from side to side.

Even rose and went to the railing of the veranda, whence one could see the winding road, scarcely more than a well-trodden trail, which led from the town to the house on the hill. Shading his eyes from the blinding glare of the nearly level sun rays, he peered downward for some moments before responding. Then, saying laconically:

"Jest comin' up the rise," he returned to his seat and his task.

Shortly there became audible the soft thud of hoof-beats and the creaking of straining leather, punctured by the cracking of a whip and the encouraging "cluck-cluck" of the driver. The road curved behind the house, and as the sounds drew away Meleen followed them with a hearkening, rolling motion of the head infinitely pathetic in its yearning helplessness and impotence.

Soon there was the sound of footsteps within the house, and there appeared upon the veranda the long-expected arrival, Phineas Carboy, a well-known San Francisco practitioner in the law, whose firm had transacted most of Andrew Meleen's affairs since he had been wealthy enough to afford the luxury of eminent legal advice. Never in his life had he needed it more than now.

His eyes flashed with feverish impatience as he responded to the lawyer's formal greetings. Hardly was he seated, note book in hand, than the dying man rapped out curtly:

"Are y' ready?"

"Quite so, Mr. Meleen," was the response; knowing his man, Mr. Carboy wasted no words on formal condolences or tame civilities.

"Understand what I want done?" was the next question.

"Your telegram intimated that you desired to give me instructions for your last will and testament."

"Instructions—yes—ye'll get enough of them!" with a grim smile; "but I want the thing fixed up this blessed night. My time's short, as y' see. Can y' do it—will it stand?"

Mr. Carboy nodded gravely, and with pen ready poised looked expectantly at his client. But the latter's next words were not exactly those he anticipated.

"How much sh'd y' say I wuz wuth, Carboy, if everything wuz cleaned up an' turned into cash?" inquired the old man. The legal mind hesitated, but only for an instant.

"Twenty-five or thirty million dollars at the very least," was the quiet reply.

"I guess that's about it," sighed Andy Meleen. "Now, man, stick a pin through this: I'm going to leave all that I'm wuth to a feller I've never seen!"

He shot a keen glance at Mr. Carboy to judge of the effect of this somewhat startling announcement, but the lawyer was too well trained to show any mark of surprise beyond a slight contracting and lifting of the eyebrows.

"You know his name, I presume, and where he can be found?"

"No, I don't!" was the reply snapped back; "that's for you t' find out. This is the way of it: I had an only son over there in th' old country named Mattie. She kem t' Ameriky ten years after I did, an' I heard she wuz married an' had a son. But I've forgotten her husband's name if I ever knew it. Ha'n't seen her since she wuz a slip of a girl. 'Course, she may be dead, an' the boy, too, though she wuz younger'n me by four or five years; but you've got to try an' find 'em."

"You never saw your sister after she arrived in this country, and held no communication whatever?" asked the lawyer, making notes.

Meleen shook his head. "I wuz mighty poor myself in those days, Carboy, an'—oh, well, I'd troubles of my own, an' then I drifted west an' out here."

"Where was this sister living when you last heard of her?"

"N' York."

"How many years ago would that be?"

"Bout 20, I reckon."

"And her son, if living, is to have everything?"

"That's it!" was the emphatic reply. "Gosh! I'll bet he'll be astonished wherever and whoever he is!"

"Doubtless!" was Carboy's dry comment. "But had you no other kin, Mr. Meleen?"

"Nary a kin," was the reply. "There was only me an' Mattie, an' we wuz left orphans when I wuz no bigger'n a shovel."

"No cousins, for instance?" persisted Mr. Carboy.

"Nary a cousin."

"Were you ever married yourself?" was the next query. Simple and necessary as it was under the circumstances, and put in a colorless, matter-of-fact manner, its effect on the recumbent figure of old Andy Meleen was like that of a galvanic battery applied to a corpse.

His nervous and shrunken frame twitched and quivered; the once mighty chest heaved as though it would burst asunder; great beads of sweat broke out on face and forehead, and his strong mouth and chin trembled with emotions entirely apart from causes due to age and weakness. Mr. Carboy was genuinely distressed at the effect he had so unwittingly produced. Something in the question had touched Andy on the raw. In halting and fragmentary phrases he said:

"God forgive me, Carboy, I wuz married, an' to the sweetest little woman that ever trod God A'mighty's footstool! I wuz a man full grown then—45 years old—old 'nuff to know better! I wuz workin' in the Pennsylvania coal mines. A month after the weddin' we had a main fitter quarrel. There kem a strike, an' I went out along o' the rest o' the boys. Minna didn't like my bein' out o' work, an' told me so. There wuz hot words, an' in a blindin' rage I struck her an' left the house, swearin' I'd never go back! Then, like a fule, I went an' listed for Uncle Sam. At the fightin' in th' Wilderness, my fust battle, I got hit in three or four places, an' th' am-bulances left me on the field for dead. But an' old farmer picked me up, an' after puttin' in a year o' hospital I kem out putty high as fit as ever. Th' war wuz over, an' then I heard that my wife, my Minna, had died in her time o' trouble an' her girl baby with her. As heaven's my witness, I've never squared myself with myself for leavin' her alone at such a time. I tramped west—niver showed my ugly face east ag'in—an' you know the rest."

"Forgive me for arousing such painful memories, Mr. Meleen," said Carboy, "but the inquiry was inevitable; we must know where we stand."

Old Andy signified that he heard and appreciated. The strain of this long recital had come mighty near to parting his mortal coil then and there, and he lay as one indeed very near to death. Mr. Carboy waited a few minutes—he was not yet done with his prologues into the past. At length Meleen opened his eyes once more and turned them mutely on his inquirer, who interpreted that as a sign for him to proceed.

"I presume these matters can be verified—the time and place of your marriage and the date of demise of your wife and child?"

For answer the old miner produced a well-worn leather wallet from under the blanket which covered him.

"You'll find th' dates an' names there," he said faintly. "Anythin' more y' want t' know?"

"One other point must be settled: Suppose this nephew of yours is dead, or cannot be found—who is to inherit in that case?"

Another spasm contorted Andy's rugged features.

"It goes to the state, I s'pose; that's the law, ain't it?"

Carboy nodded.

The Ultimate Aim.

Life is given us primarily to develop character, to unfold and evolve the soul, and the physical organism, our body, is the testing ground and gymnasium for its development, says the Philadelphia Record.

The ultimate aim, then, of living should be making the life beautiful within, which always insures loveliness without—the masterful conquest of the lower nature, the willing renunciation of trifling and unnecessary habits; love of the true and perfect and avoidance of the untrue and imperfect; a realization that whatever else others may do or be, that our conscious universe will be made for and by ourselves. The key of life and the art of living are expressed in the words mastery and attainment. This can be done by right thinking, by finding our soul center. We will claim our divine birthright, our royal privilege of standing erect and free with brow bared to the white light of truth, veritable sons and daughters of God.

Don't overdo a thing unless you are also prepared to do it over.

DR. HYDE GETS LIFE

GUILTY OF POISONING
COLONEL SWOPE.

DOCTOR STILL HAS HOPES

Jurors Reach Agreement After Having
Been Locked Up Since Friday
Night—Prisoner's Lawyers
Will Appeal Case.

Kansas City, Mo.—Dr. B. O. Hyde was on Monday found guilty of murder in the first degree and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. That he poisoned his wife's uncle, Col. Thomas H. Swope, the Kansas City millionaire, was the verdict reached by the jury after three nights and two days of deliberation.

The physician will be sentenced in open court by Justice Latschaw Thursday of Friday. The law allows the defense four days to file a motion for a new trial.

"Treat that prisoner the same as any other," Judge Latschaw said to County Marshal Joe B. Mayes. "Give him few privileges and no luxuries."

The custom of permitting prisoners to send out for their meals will apply in Doctor Hyde's case, but he must sleep in a cell.

"I will file a motion for a new trial and then take an appeal in the case," said Frank P. Walsh, chief counsel for Doctor Hyde.

The verdict came unexpectedly. Every attorney in the case had given up hope that the jury, which had been out since Friday night, would come to an agreement.

When the announcement came that the verdict was ready the news spread rapidly and every inch of space in the courtroom soon was occupied.

Little time was wasted in reading the verdict. The crowd heard it and at the marshal's orders arose and left the room without confusion. Judge Latschaw thanked each of the jurors and they hurried home.

"Oh, Clark!" cried Mrs. Hyde, as the jury's verdict was read. Then she threw her arms around her husband's neck and wept. As his wife patted him on the cheek Hyde sat motionless, staring at Judge Latschaw. When the words "imprisonment for life" were read he showed the first signs of excitement. Soon he regained his composure, however, and said: "Don't worry, dearie," to Mrs. Hyde.

Doctor Hyde said: "I have not lost hope. There will be another trial."

Within ten minutes the prisoner was taken back to his cell.

LINK PURGED OF CONTEMPT

Witness in Illinois Legislative Bribery
Inquiry Answers Question
Propounded by State's Attorney.

Springfield, Ill.—Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell was Monday purged of his contempt of court when he went before the Sangamon county grand jury and answered the question put to him by State's Attorney Edmund Burke in the legislative bribery scandal.

In answer to the question: "Did any person or persons in Sangamon county, Illinois, offer, or promise you any money, or other valuable thing in consideration of your vote in the Forty-sixth general assembly of this state for a United States senator?"

Mr. Link is said to have replied "No." This was the only question put to him by the state's attorney, but Link is said to have told the jurors and Prosecutor Burke that he would be glad to tell his whole story, but for the fact that State's Attorney Wayman at Chicago had found a contradiction in his testimony before the Cook county grand jury and had threatened him with indictment for perjury if he told anything elsewhere.

Following his determination to delve into the alleged "jack-pot" bribery, State's Attorney Burke issued two subpoenas "duces tecum" for John M. Glenn, secretary, and S. M. Hastings, treasurer, of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, together with the books of the concern.

Washington.—Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer in the office of the secretary of the interior, who issued a statement regarding the Lawler memorandum on the Glavis charges to the president, was discharged Monday from the government service by Secretary Ballinger.

Secretary of the Interior Ballinger said that his action in discharging Kerby and declaring him to be "unworthy" was the only course left open to him.

Rickard to Referee Fight.

San Francisco.—After an exceedingly stormy discussion, in which Jack Johnson and Sam Berger were the principals, Tex Rickard was Monday mutually agreed upon as referee of the Johnson-Jeffries boxing match next Fourth of July.

Body of Boy in Creek.

New York.—The body of William E. Rivers, the five-year-old boy who had been missing from his home in Flushing since May 7, was found Monday floating in Flushing creek.

HELP FOR THE AGED.

No Need to Longer Suffer from Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, 1712 Moffatt St., Joplin, Mo., says: "Like most elderly people, I suffered from kidney trouble for years. My back ached intensely and there was a feeling of numbness in my spine. My hands were cramped and the urinary passages were profuse. Doctors prescribed for me but I was not benefited. At last I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They drove my troubles away, and I now enjoy excellent health."

"Somepin awful," replied Dusty Rhodes. "The cost of everything's gone up so a feller can't hardly get his three meals per."

"Humph!" ejaculated Weary. "I never knowed you to pay for nothin'."

"No," returned Dusty, "but it's the solemn fact that along my route, where I used to have to ask only once for a breakfast, they make me ask twice these days."—Harper's Weekly.

Shows Value of Steel Car.

That the steel car is of great value as a protection to passengers in the event of collision was demonstrated in a recent clash of two trains in the Hudson tunnel, New York city. There was no such telescoping as would probably have occurred with wooden cars, and the injuries were merely such as resulted from the passengers being thrown down by the shock of the collision.

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ill, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

CONVERTING THE OLD MAN

Cogent Reason Advanced That Had the Effect of Bringing "Paw" to the Penitent Bench.

They say that once down in a Kentucky county, which shall be anonymous, one of the young rough-necks was converted at a revival held in the little building which served a double purpose as schoolhouse and church. He had been a wild lad, but his conversion was sincere, and by the force of his example or possibly of his hard fist he succeeded in getting the rest of his following to join, too.

His father had never been to church, and said, further, that he never intended to go. His son, however, following his change of front, greatly desired that his sire should join him in that stand. He got the preacher, who was conducting the services, to go and wrestle with the old fellow. The two adjured him to attend church.

He was finally persuaded to do so, and once there the son and the evangelist directed their efforts to getting him on the mourners' bench. The old man wavered, but finally stood firm. He reckoned it was powerful good, but he kinder believed he'd let things be as they were.

That was an unconventional way of putting it, but it had its effect, and the old man joined. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

SUGAR A NEED OF THE BODY

Requisite Food for Both Children and Adults, According to Eminent Authority.

"Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butter scotch and they'll have little need of cod liver oil," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson. "In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put this matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding and other desserts at your lunch or midday dinner. You'll be astonished to find out how quickly you'll feel 'empty' again, and how 'unfinished' the meal will seem. You can't get any workman to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he's absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that the free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and the lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business. The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal, the less alcohol he wants. Conversely nearly every drinking man will tell you he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol."

One of His Worst.

A receptacle containing a dark red beverage—it may have been merely tea—was brought on the table.

"I'll play I'm hostess," said the professor's granddaughter, "and as I am a society lady, it is my duty to pour." "Yes, let her do it," said the professor. "She's not only a society lady but she's a society queen—and she never reigns but she pours."

Otherwise the function was a great success.

EVER HAVE LIBRARY FRIGHT?

Awful Feeling That Sometimes Attacks People Asking for Books in a Strange Place.

"Library fright is an awful feeling," said the librarian. "It attacks people who go into a strange library to look around or rest for a few minutes and are told that in order to enjoy the hospitality of the reading room they will have to ask for a book and make at least a pretense of reading."

"I have had library fright twice myself. My first attack was in the Congressional library in Washington. I wanted to read there for a few minutes, just to be able to say afterward that I had read there. Used as I was to handling books, I couldn't think of even the dictionary when it came to making a choice. After a few minutes of hopeless floundering, 'Taine's History of English Literature' came into my mind. I had no desire on earth to look at Taine's English literature then or at any other time, but I give you my word I couldn't think of any other book to save my life."

"Another time in a library right here in town I was stricken with a similar panic and after stumbling through the catalogue in a dazed sort of way I asked for 'David Copperfield'—Copperfield, mind you, that I had read forty-seven times and knew by heart. A person who has never experienced library fright cannot imagine how foolish and helpless the sufferer feels." —Exchange.

Woman's Opinion of Her Lawyer.

A woman accused at Kent Assizes of obtaining credit by false pretenses was defended at the request of the court by one of the junior members of the bar. Asked in cross-examination why she had not put certain questions to one of the witnesses for the prosecution, she replied: "I have counsel appearing for me, or I should simply have pulverized the witness. I mean no disrespect to this young gentleman (indicating her counsel), and I believe he will be a very clever man presently." She was acquitted. —London Evening Standard.

THURSDAY, MAY 19, 1910

Roosevelt on the last lap finishes at the dead line; i. e.—the funeral of King Edward.

Congressman Foss is to present the petition to make Grant's birthday a legal holiday. Why not?

The News has not been listed as an insurgent, but go and buy some cotton if you think the tariff has reduced that particular commodity.

Secretary McVeagh is planning to make our paper money, in size, smaller. Gee whiz! let's have it bigger. It's hard enough to find as it is.

One thing is sure, the fellows over in Waukegan know how to run for office, anyway. And a funny part of the thing is a lot of them get elected, too.

In Berlin Roosevelt was made a doctor of philosophy by one of the universities. We don't think this is really going to hurt him much in Texas.

Senator Lorimer's LaSalle street bank took in a million and a half in deposits on its first day of opening. Looks as if somebody still had confidence in him.

Again we wish to suggest that the Lake county primaries are September 15. Pin it in your hat for if all signs don't fail there is going to be something doing.

Representative Link of "confession" publicity commences to look like the missing link to States Attorney Burke of Springfield. Link refuses to confess to him.

The Ballinger investigation is nearing its end. If they would all quit business and hurry up to Minnesota and put out the forest fires—that would be conservation.

The Inter Ocean is very much like the celebrated Mr. Finnegan of "off again, on again" fame, these days. It must look to it now as if Mr. Wayman had "coupled up and gone again."

The man who would rather be a king among hogs than a hog among kings seems not to have overlooked the possibilities for holding kings in the late legislative "jack pot" at Springfield.

Did you notice how they got down to business at the capitol when President Taft got back to Washington? Let those people who would have him nothing but a figurehead take another think.

Your Uncle Joe. Cannon certainly hits a head when he sees it. The college dude is the latest to suffer. Joe. says of this important individual that he may succeed in life in spite of his handicap if he will forget his education.

The old phase "who struck Billie Paterson?" is what some of the waterways enthusiasts are just now using. We would say Ed. Shurtleff was the culprit and we wouldn't be surprised if he would hit poor Billie again, before he got through.

Belvidere skins Woodstock a mile. Representative Burns of that enterprising little city goes before the Wayman grand jury—on a subpoena—while Senator Olson of Woodstock lays idly back in his rocking chair or his automobile with nothing to do.

The political clouds in Chicago are about to clear. The contest is to be Lorimer vs. Deneen and Busse. Its going to be a good race but the weights that the various entries are to carry cannot be determined at this time. Perhaps there will be no weight.

Poor old Joliet! After turning Chicago's filth on her through the drainage canal, they are now talking of sending the Calumet with another dose down that way. This is to be by order of the War Department. Doesn't Congressman Snapp of that city cut any ice at all?

The Waukegan Gazette in an editorial has almost exonerated the grafters, if there be grafters, among the members of our state legislature. It says that "the dear ones at home" are the cause of it all. Fudge! that's what the bank cashier says when he steals your money trying to make himself rich.

A friend, or possibly an enemy of former Senator Hopkins has announced that the ex-statesman has gained 23 pounds in weight since Wayman got busy for the Tribune. If Lorimer's troubles keep up it may result in a tragedy, at least—the Auroragenteleman may die of fatty generation of the heart.

Why Doesn't He Get Out?

It is the honest opinion of almost every Republican in Washington and in most cases, audibly expressed, that Ballinger is a dead weight to the administration. The attitude of the President in sticking by a friend whom he believes to be a valuable asset is appreciated by the country at large, but the attitude of the friend who knows what he is costing his superior in practical results in the end, there is much to blame.

The bravado of the cheap man is commonly the phase "I will not retire under fire" and the misnamed friend, Mr. Ballinger, is working it to the limit. While the white wash will come for him at the hands of the congressional committee, of course, that will never be sufficient to convince the great majority of good Republicans of the middle west that his hands are clean.

Why can't he be good for once, at least, and subside gracefully to the good of the cause of good Republicanism? Echo answers why?

Something Practical

Professor Hopkins of the Illinois State University is neither an insurgent, a near insurgent or a stand pater. He is not in politics at all and he has a worse sounding label. He is an agronomist. There is no occasion for alarm however. That merely means that he is an expert in the productivity of soil. In a late lecture to the American farmer he tells them some things that science has proved true and which they don't know.

The most startling idea advanced by him and one which will make more than one incredulous farmer doubt, is that they accomplish anything to speak of by a rotation of crops. He says the wear and tear on the land at the end of a few years is much more than if the same crop had been duplicated. His proposition is that nothing but fertilizer is the hope of the agriculturist. Fertilizer, more fertilizer, fertilizer all the time is the cry of this authority if we are going to be able to produce what the market calls for.

In Europe, he states, they grow on one acre what we here in the west use three acres to produce and with no better native soil. In France a man with thirty acres has an independent income; in England forty acres, if it is his own, makes him affluent and the prices for his crops are no better than here. They do all this with fertilizer. Put your money, he argues, into fertilizer and you have solved the hired man problem. It means you can cut down your farm a third, work it all by yourself and make more money in the end.

To a man who has got only a garden in his back yard this looks like good stuff but anyway we give it to you for what you think it is worth.

Holeproof Hose

What Our Six Months' Guarantee Really Means

Holeproof Hosiery is guaranteed to be as free from holes at the end of six months as it is the day you buy it. We give you this guarantee in writing so if any holes appear in six months you receive new hosiery free of charge.

Common hosiery has no such guarantee. It costs you just as much as "Holeproof," but at the end of six months it is worthless. You spend hours darning it when for no extra expense you can have "Holeproof" and do no mending. Why not have the best?

FAMOUS
Holeproof Hosiery
FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Insist on seeing the original Holeproof trade-mark. Many have imitated the guarantee but none have equaled the quality.

The makers pay 63 cents a pound for Egyptian and Sea Island cotton, but common hosiery is made from cotton at 12 cents a pound.

"Holeproof" uses 3-ply yarn in the body and 6-ply in the heels, toes and knees. Ordinary hosiery uses 2-ply throughout, yet costs you just as much as "Holeproof."

Stop in at our store and examine the hose. See how stylish and comfortable it is—soft, smooth and neat fitting. Learn the facts today.

KERBY CAUSES STIR

BALLINGER EMPLOYEE'S CHARGE CREATES BIG SENSATION AT PINCHOT INQUIRY.

IT INVOLVES THE PRESIDENT

Stenographer Declares Assistant Attorney General Lawler Drafted Letter Exonerating Secretary of Interior From Glavis Charges.

Washington—President Taft's letter of last September ordering the dismissal of L. A. Glavis from the land office service and exonerating Secretary Ballinger from the charges preferred by Glavis was based upon and in part directly quoted from a draft of a letter written by Oscar Lawler, assistant attorney general of the interior department. The Lawler letter was drafted in such form that it might have been adopted verbatim and signed by the president.

The draft by Mr. Lawler was delivered to the Ballinger-Pinchot committee Saturday and ordered spread upon the records of the investigation. Careful comparison of the Lawler draft with the letter shows that Mr. Taft did in fact adopt practically verbatim two short paragraphs of Mr. Lawler's language. The substance of the two documents is otherwise widely dissimilar.

The thing came to a head in the publication of a statement attributed to Frederick M. Kerby, one of the stenographers in the office of Secretary Ballinger, in which Kerby related at length the circumstances under which he alleged the Lawler draft to have been prepared.

Kerby asserts further that all of the preliminary drafts used in the preparation of the letter were burned in a grate in the interior department at the suggestion and under the supervision of Don M. Carr, Mr. Ballinger's private secretary.

Kerby drew the inference that the Lawler draft had been adopted by the president essentially as his own; that Mr. Ballinger and his legal adviser therefore virtually had prepared the exoneration which Mr. Taft had issued over his own signature.

Almost simultaneously with the publication of the Kerby statement Attorney General Wickham sent to the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, then in session, a copy of the Lawler draft, accompanied by a letter to Chairman Nelson in which Mr. Wickham declared the document had been overlooked in sending the papers requisitioned by the committee at the behest of Attorney Brandeis.

The publication of the Kerby statement evoked from the White House a statement declaring there was "absolutely no foundation" for the statement "that the president's letter of September 13, 1909, was substantially prepared for the president's signature by Assistant Attorney General Lawler" and asserting unequivocally that "the president dictated his letter personally as the result of his own investigation of the records and consideration of documents and papers in his possession at the time and upon the report of the attorney general."

It was further pointed out, both at the White House and by Attorney General Wickham himself, that a comparison of the Lawler draft and the president's letter would show that the inferences of the Kerby statement were unwarranted.

Mr. Wickham alluded to the practice common in the government departments of subordinates preparing letters and documents for the consideration of their superiors and their use by them in whole or in part as they might see fit.

In a letter to Senator Nelson Sunday President Taft assumes all responsibility for Ballinger's exoneration, saying he directed Lawler "to prepare an opinion as if he were the president," but did not think it wise to adopt the criticism contained therein of Mr. Glavis and Mr. Pinchot.

TAFT CONFERS WITH SOLONS

President Invites Western Republican Senators, Excepting "Insurgents," to White House Conference.

Washington—President Taft conferred with Republican senators from states west of the Mississippi river Saturday upon whom he is depending for votes to put through his legislative program. Nearly all of the western senators were present on the invitation of the president, except the Republican Insurgents. They were not invited.

The purpose of the gathering was to get all of the western Republicans in line, including some of those who have appeared lukewarm toward certain of the administration measures. No effort will be made to influence the "out-and-out Insurgents," according to authoritative statements from some of the participants in the conference.

The conference resulted in mutual concessions.

STEAMER SINKS; 13 DROWNED

MISSISSIPPI RIVER PACKET
STRIKES A HIDDEN ROCK.

Boat Carrying Fifty-Seven Persons Goes Down Within Reach of Land.

St. Louis.—By the sinking of the steamship City of Saltillo in the Mississippi river at Glen Park, Mo., Wednesday night when the boat was hurled against a hidden rock by the swift current, 13 persons, seven of whom were passengers, lost their lives. Glen Park is 24 miles south of St. Louis.

The boat carried 27 passengers, most of whom were women and children, and a crew of 30. She left St. Louis at seven o'clock, with a heavy cargo, including a number of cattle and live stock, and the voyage was considered precarious because of the amount of driftwood floating in the river, due to the annual spring rise.

Shortly before reaching Glen Park the Saltillo encountered a shoreward draw, which was fought frantically by the pilots. The engines were reversed, but the efforts to prevent the collision were unavailing.

With the noise of rending timbers and the shrieks of the women and children passengers, the cries of the crew, and the bellowing of the cattle, the vessel struck a hidden rock and sunk in reach of land, at a point where the water was 20 feet deep.

Passengers and members of the crew clung to the timbers, while those more fortunate lent their aid immediately to the rescue of the helpless. The majority of the passengers were in their cabins. The collision came so suddenly they were plunged into the water before they knew what had happened.

BANDITS "SHOOT UP" TOWN

Rob Mount Pleasant (Mich.) Post Office of $3,000 in Cash and Stamps and Escape.

Saginaw, Mich.—Bandits, masked and mounted, Thursday blew the post office safe at Mount Pleasant, a city of 8,000, securing $3,000 in stamps and money and terrorizing the entire town.

The robbers, numbering seven or eight, are believed to have halted near the south limits until their plans were complete, when they rode through the main street in old-time border fashion, shooting and shouting. Secret service men took up the trail and it is believed that arrests are imminent. The post office often contains as high as $10,000 in cash and stamps.

The police believe the post office safe had been blown and rifled before the robbers began shooting and that they would have made their escape less spectacularly had it not been for the noise made by the explosion of nitroglycerin. This caused several men to start an investigation and as soon as they appeared the reign of terror began.

The fusillade of shots fired by the men as they endeavored to cover their escape so confused those in authority that it was subsequently impossible to discover whether the bandits had turned their horses loose outside the town and escaped on the train that passed half an hour after the explosion, or whether they rode away on their own mounts.

HAYTI SHAKEN BY QUAKE

Many Persons Reported Killed and Injured at Puerto Plata, San Domingo.

San Jose, Costa Rica.—Heavy earthquakes were felt here Wednesday. Thousands of persons are leaving the city in alarm.

Santo Domingo.—A severe earthquake shock was felt here Wednesday. There was no loss of life nor damage to property in the city.

Puerto Plata, San Domingo.—An earthquake which caused a panic among residents here Wednesday is reported to have resulted in heavy loss of life and damage to property in towns in the interior.

Many persons are reported to have been killed and many more injured. Only vague reports have come in so far, but it is feared the casualty list will prove a long one.

The shocks were felt here about 3 a. m. and were so severe that the people were aroused from sleep and fled terror-stricken into the streets.

MINE BLAST TRAPS 136 MEN

Work of Rescue of Entombed Miners

ROOSEVELT REACHES LONDON

IS WELCOMED BY KING GEORGE'S SPECIAL AIDS.

Colonel Abandons Role of Private Citizen and Becomes Ambassador at Funeral of Edward.

London.—Colonel Roosevelt abandoned the role of private citizen when he arrived here Monday morning and was accorded the honors due the special American ambassador to the funeral of King Edward VII. He was met at the station by Lord Dunsford and Commander Charles E. F. Cunningham, special aide-de-camp appointed by King George V. to attend the ambassador during his stay in London. Both men are prominent in the service of the crown.

The aids met Mr. Roosevelt at Queensborough and accompanied him to this city. Awaiting the former president at the Victoria station were one of the king's equerries, a representative of the British foreign office, Ambassador Reid.

Ambassador Reid and the staff of the American embassy, with their wives. The welcome to the special ambassador was very cordial and a large crowd of people was at the station to witness his arrival. The general mourning acted as a damper on the enthusiasm of the people, but their greeting was none the less sincere.

Mr. Roosevelt was escorted to Dorchester house, where he will remain until after the funeral of King Edward. It is expected that he will spend the end of the week at West Park, although the invitations to meet Mr. Roosevelt, which had been issued by Ambassador Reid, have been canceled.

SENATE VOTES ON RATE BILL

Long and Short Haul Provision of Railroad Measure Is Adopted by Senate.

Washington.—By a vote of 57 to 10 the senate Friday adopted a modified form of the Dixon long and short haul amendment to the railroad bill.

The amendment represents the combined efforts of Republican, Democratic and Insurgent leaders, and it is significant that Senator Aldrich defended it on the floor and cast his vote in its favor. The consensus of opinion is that the amendment is contradictory in its terms and defeats its own purpose, or, if it is not so, that it burdens the interstate commerce commission with an impossible task.

PRISON TERM FOR GRAFTERS

Six Men Receive Sentence at Pittsburg on Charge of Bribery and Conspiracy.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Ten prominent men of affairs of Pittsburg, including bankers, physicians and former leading politicians, faced Judge Robert S. Frazer in the criminal court to receive their sentences on various charges of bribery and conspiracy in connection with councilman corruption recently exposed.

Six were given terms in jail and fined and sentence of four was deferred.

Of the ten men who appeared in court all except one have already pleaded no defense to indictments alleging the giving and receiving of bribe money.

Sentences were imposed as follows: A. A. Vilsack, former cashier German National bank; eight months in the county jail and a fine of $5,000.

Charles Stewart, former select councilman; eight months in the county jail and a fine of $500.

Hugh Ferguson, former common councilman; eight months in the county jail and a fine of $500.

Dr. W. H. Weber, former select councilman; six months in the county jail and a fine of $500.

P. B. Kearns, former select councilman; four months in the county jail and a fine of $250.

Fellow Townsman.

Tarrytown, N. Y., May 18.—To take a drive with John D. Rockefeller has become a regular recreation this spring for a great many of the friends and neighbors of that famous resident of Tarrytown, and he has increased thereby his popularity among the people of the little city. Not a pleasant day goes by without the oil king inviting some of them, men, women and children, to ride with him in automobile or carriage, and it is safe to say that the invitations are seldom declined, for his vehicles are the best to be had, and the drives around Tarrytown are beautiful.

Mr. Rockefeller, before starting for a ride, always dons a paper vest, declaring it to be a great protection against colds, and he insists that his guests do the same. After the ride he refuses to take back the garment, and consequently in nearly every home in Tarrytown may be found a paper vest preserved as a souvenir of a delightful ride with the multi-millionaire.

EIGHT SCHOOL PUPILS DROWN

Accident Results From Attempt to Frighten Girls by Rocking of Boat by Boys.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Rocking the boat to frighten the girls caused the drowning of six girls and two boys out of a party of 12 on an old mill dam at Huntington Mills, a country village 15 miles from here Thursday. The four who escaped are boys and they got to the shore exhausted after a vain effort to save the girls. All of the party were members of the high school at Huntington Mills, and were out for a frolic during the lunch hour. They were all between the ages of sixteen and eighteen.

Really a Serious Dilemma.

"The chap who works on one side of me," said an office man, "has been married six weeks and he sneaks to the telephone about four times a day and calls up his wife, and then I hear him saying: 'Dear, how is your headache now? I hope you are feeling better.'
Then pretty soon he comes back to his desk and goes to work again all smiling."

"The man who works on the other side of me has been married six years and he goes to the telephone only when he's called and then I hear him saying: 'Why, I can't possibly do that.
I can't spare the money; and then he comes back to his desk all scowling.'"

Mr. Adees in Europe.

Second Assistant Secretary Adees of the state department is on his annual vacation in Europe. In company with Mr. Thacker, United States consul general at Berlin, and Mrs. Thacker, he will devote about six weeks to a bicycle tour of southern France. He expects to return to Washington about the middle of June.

Not a Case of Treat.

"How long has the doctor been treating your wife?"

"Treatin' her? Gosh, if you seen his bills you wouldn't think there was much treatin' about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Jeweled Set.

An actress said of Eleanor Robson:
"She is a dear. She has married August Belmont. Now she is in the set that I once heard her so wittily ridicule."

"She said that in conversation with a leading matron of this glided, this jeweled set, she once said:

"And where do you think you'll spend the summer, Mrs. Van Gelt?"

"Er—the North Cape, I believe," Mrs. Van Gelt answered. "One can get skating there all through August, you know."

"And where will you spend the winter, then?"

"Oh, Florida, by all means. There's such ripping January bathing at Palm Beach."

Too Lavish.

Mrs. Dobbs was trying to find out the likes and dislikes of her new boarder, and all she learned increased her satisfaction.

"Do you want pie for breakfast?" she asked.

"No, I thank you," said the new boarder, with a smile. "Pie for breakfast seems a little too much."

"That's just the way I look at it," said Mrs. Dobbs, heartily. "I say pie for dinner is a necessity, and pie for supper gives a kind of finishing touch to the day; but pie for breakfast is what I call putting on airs."—Youth's Companion.

A Divided Family.

The bright six-year-old daughter of a physician happened into his reception room the other day and a waiting woman patient engaged her in conversation.

"I suppose you go to church and Sunday school?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, ma'am," she replied.

"And what denomination do your parents belong to?"

"Why," said the little one, "mamma's a Presbyterian and papa's a stomach specialist."

Do the Lawmakers Like Baseball? Well!

WASHINGTON.—Chairman Olcott of the special committee which is conducting the Merchant Marine league investigation, is a game statesman. He entered the committee room recently with a long list of questions which he wanted to propound to B. N. Baker of Baltimore, the witness for the afternoon. Olcott called the meeting to order in the usual manner, and carefully arranged his questions before him.

A slip of paper with a question on it was handed to Representative Garrett, one of the committeemen. Garrett read the question and smiled. While Olcott was absorbed in his witness Garrett tucked the slip of paper among the others lying before the chairman. Olcott went along with his questioning, like this:

"Now, Mr. Baker, if you were going to take the quickest and shortest route to Buenos Ayres what would that route be?"

Baker answered. Then Olcott came to the slip of paper.

"Mr. Baker," he began, and then he stopped.

"Well," he continued, after he had turned the paper over once or twice in astonishment, "I guess I might as well finish this question. Somebody has been kind enough to furnish me with it."

He read:

"Mr. Baker, if you wanted to attend the ball game in Washington this afternoon what time would you start?"

"This blessed moment," said the witness.

Whereupon adjournment was taken.

Postscript Just to be fair—Olcott and the rest of the committeemen went to the floor of the house, where the railroad bill was under consideration.

On another day Representative Garrett told this story:

A man went into a lawyer's office.

"I want to sue my administrator," he said.

"Oh," said the lawyer, suavely, "you mean that you want to sue your guardian."

"Perhaps you know more about it than I do," said the prospective client. "I'm just back from the war and they've got me reported dead. They've started already to administer my estate. I want to sue that administrator."

He did.

BABY WASTED TO SKELETON

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come out on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad that I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk."

"My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I sent to a drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of the Ointment and followed directions. At the end of two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since. I can sincerely say that only for Cuticura my child would have died. I used only one cake of Cuticura Soap and about three boxes of Ointment."

"I am a nurse and my profession brings me into many different families and it is always a pleasure for me to tell my story and recommend Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 23, 1909"

Benefit In Outdoor Schools.

Speaking before the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis recently, Dr. Henry Farnum Stoll of Hartford, Conn., said: "Every city should have one or more outdoor schools." He recommended such institutions for all delicate, so-called scrofulous or anaemic children, and those with tuberculosis of the bones, who are now in ordinary schools. Doctor Stoll declared that twenty or forty per cent. of school children in large cities are infected with tuberculosis. By the use of tuberculin, it was ascertained that 70 per cent. of the children from tuberculous homes were infected as against only 26 per cent. of those from supposedly healthy homes. It was also found that 50 per cent. of the frail children from healthy homes had the germs of the disease, but that only 13 per cent. of the robust children from similar homes were thus affected.

Importation of Leeches.

Leeches are enumerated by the bureau of statistics under its general head of animals imported, the total value of the imports of this species in 1908 having been $5,341; in 1907, $6,922; in 1906, $4,494; in 1905, $3,862; in 1904, $3,589; in 1903, $3,240, and in 1902, $2,412—the commerce in leeches being thus of a growing character. The total number of leeches imported in the United States in the decade ending with 1908, is about 40,000. Leeches are imported free of duty. Snails were at one time enumerated as an article of importation, the records from 1894 to 1898 showing snails imported to the extent of about $5,000, but the small trade so dwindled, showing only $24 of imports in 1908, that the bureau discontinued its statements of this article.

LIFE-SAPPING PARASITES THAT WRECK HUMAN SYSTEM

The following remarkable statement was recently made by L. T. Cooper. It concerns the preparation which has been so widely discussed throughout the country during the past year, and has sold in such enormous quantities in leading cities:

"It is now a well-known fact that wherever I have introduced my New Discovery medicine, hundreds of people have brought internal parasites, or tapeworms, to me. In many cases these people did not know the nature of the parasite, and were consequently extremely nervous until I explained the matter to them. In some cities so many have had this experience that the public generally became alarmed."

"I take this opportunity of explaining what these creatures are, and what I have learned about them in the past."

"Tapeworms are much more common than would be supposed. I venture to say that ten per cent. of all chronic stomach trouble, or what is known as a 'rundown' condition, is caused by them. An individual may suffer for years with one of these great parasites and not be aware of it."

"Contrary to general belief, the appetite is not greatly increased—it only becomes irregular. There is a general feeling of faintness, however, and a gnawing sensation in the pit of the stomach."

"People afflicted with one of these parasites are nervous and depressed. Their chief sensation is one of languor, and they tire very easily. Lack of energy and ambition affect the body, and the mind becomes dull and sluggish. The memory becomes not so good, and the eyesight is generally poorer."

"The New Discovery, in freeing stomach and bowels of all impurities, seems to be fatal to these great worms, and almost immediately expels them from the system. I wish to assure anyone who has the experience just related with my preparation, that there is no cause for alarm in the matter, and that it will as a rule mean a speedy restoration to good health."

Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will forward you the name of a druggist in your city who will. Don't accept "something just as good."—The Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton, Ohio.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:

"I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was something in it, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost."

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. The room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you let this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Yes, the Statesman's Mind Was Clear

"I DON'T SEE ANY BODY"

ONCE a statesman had typhoid fever. He was very ill. For days his doctors thought he must die. He was delirious nearly all the time. After a while he became a little better. He begged that he be permitted to see another statesman whom he was particularly fond of. The friend came.

"Well, Jim," said the caller, "how are you getting along?"

Jim said he was getting along all right, but just then he had a slight attack of his former delirium. The friend tried to soothe him, but he was confused in his talk, and apparently unable to understand altogether what was transpiring.

"Jim, you've been pretty sick, but you're all right now. You've been delirious, you know; but that's all passed."

"Yes, I've been out of my head a good deal, I guess," Jim agreed. "But my mind's all cleared up now."

"Sure, you know what's going on."

City Bred Men as Tillers of the Soil

SECRETARY WILSON of the department of agriculture has just published his year book. W. J. Spillman, agriculturist in charge of the office of farm management, has written an article on "Farming as an Occupation for City-Bred Men." He hands out some tips that city men might profit by if urban life isn't all it's cracked up to be.

"Wherever it is feasible," he says, "a very good plan for the city man who has no knowledge of farming and who desires to become a farmer is to move to the suburbs and begin in a small way as a gardener. At first the principal aim should be to produce truck crops for home con## sumption. As experience is gained the industry may be enlarged and a market established. Many men have made the transition in this manner.

Others have started with one or two cows, and have let the business grow from the profits. Others have succeeded by beginning in a small way with poultry or fruit. The knowledge gained in this way, both as regards the details of farming and concerning methods of marketing, finally enables the beginner to abandon his city employment and become a farmer."

"An interesting case of this kind came to notice recently. At the Iowa state corn show in 1909 the ear of corn which took the grand prize, and which was sold at auction for $160, was produced by a farmer who ten years previously had been a driver of a laundry wagon in the city of Des Moines. It must be recognized, however, that men who have thus succeeded have invariably been men of unusual ability."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
